By Breanna Henry TV Media

Many of us need a good cry every now and then, which may be why "This is Us" has become one of the most popular prime-time soap operas since "Dallas" defined the genre in 1978. Showrunner Dan Fogelman (who also brought us "Galavant" and "Pitch") has created a beautiful, touching family drama that is as timeless as it is modern. You can watch it Tuesday, Oct. 29, on NBC.

In case you haven't managed to catch one of the 58 episodes that have aired since the series premiered in 2016, "This is Us" is a family drama rife with tragedy, romance and even some laughs to counteract the tears you will inevitably shed as you spend time with the Pearson "triplets," their parents and everyone else who comes into their lives. Since Season 4 of the series has just begun, I'll do my best to avoid any spoilers, and instead attempt to introduce "The Big Three" to anyone who may not know them yet.

The series opens in 1980, with Jack (Milo Ventimiglia, "Heroes") and Rebecca Pearson (Mandy Moore, "Tangled," 2010) celebrating Jack's 36th birthday. Rebecca's yearly rendition of "Happy Birthday Mr. President" is a little different this time — she's heavily pregnant with triplets, so a sexy dance isn't really in the cards. Though it opens with sweet comedy, I spent the last half of the first episode ugly-crying into my very confused dog's fur.

Jack and Rebecca lose one of their triplets during childbirth, but after an emotional talk about lemonade with the doctor (that made me cry), a chance encounter with a fireman (that made me cry) and Jack consoling his wife as she wakes up to the news (that really made me cry), the couple end up filling all three cribs they have waiting at home after all.

They are known as "The Big Three" and we are introduced to them on their 36th birthdays in 2016. Justin Hartley ("The Young and the Restless") plays Kevin, the eldest triplet, an oft-shirtless sitcom star teetering on the edge of a mental breakdown. Secondborn Kate, played by Chrissy Metz ("Breakthrough," 2019), has issues with weight that have defined her since childhood. The final "triplet," played by Emmy winner Sterling K. Brown ("Black Panther," 2018), is Randall, who, after being abandoned on the steps of a fire station moments after his birth, was adopted by the Pearson family.

Their lives are messy and imperfect. Kevin and Randall aren't on speaking terms, and Kate resents their mother — but they are family, and this is them. "This Is Us" also shows the changes in dynamic as spouses and significant others, like Randall's wife Beth (Susan Kelechi Watson, "Louie") and Kate's husband Toby (Chris Sullivan, "The Knick"), become part of the family. The show punches you right in the feelings and will make you contemplate your own family relationships, no matter how dysfunctional they may be. You, the viewer, have loved and lost and fought and feared, and over in the writer's room, they know that Jack's drinking problem or Toby's depression or Kate's insecurities or Rebecca's grief (or all of the above) will speak to you. Something in this series will remind you of your own life, and you will cry. But you will laugh, swoon, rage and cheer, too.

The ensemble cast of "This is Us" is so talented and diverse that I could easily have used all of my allotted words just mentioning them all, especially since the same characters are played by three or more different actors at different stages in their lives. Part of the reason the cast is so real is because Fogelman is committed to creating diversity behind the scenes as well. He ensured that directors, writers and consultants for the series were people who could understand the many issues that are important to the characters: blackness, womanhood, weight and more.

One of the most beautiful things about "This is Us" is the way it tells its story through time, weaving moments in the triplets' lives from before they were born to further on in the future seamlessly within a single episode. You are never confused as to what time period you're watching, despite the show flip-flopping from decade to decade within moments. Effort has been taken to subtly date each scene, from a split-second shot of Kevin's G.I. Joe lunchbox (the cartoon ran until 1986), to the MacBook Air in Randall's office (which was first issued in 2008). "This is Us" stretches from the mid-1940s to years into our future, and if you look hard enough, there are clues as to what the future holds for the Pearsons in each and every scene.

"This is Us" may be a soap opera, but it does soapy-drama in such a realistic, down-to-earth way that I didn't even get to say, "Hush! I'm watching my soaps!" because I didn't catch on until someone pointed it out. Still feeling iffy about getting into a series with a massive cast and even longer timeline? Ask a friend who keeps up with the show and watch the expression on their face as they relive the moment Jack and Rebecca met, the death of Randall's biological father, Kate's wedding, Kevin's first crush and Jack's time in Vietnam.

Mission Unstoppable

wвтw 🚯 11:00 a.m.

Host Miranda Cosgrove brings viewers the story of a biomedical engineer who fixes bones with oyster shells in this episode. Also, a geologist talks about the science behind earthquakes. A data scientist explores how information shapes our lives.

Trisha's Southern Kitchen

food Noon

As Halloween approaches, Trisha Yearwood enlists the help of her friend Glenda to decorate her place for a Ghoulish Gatsby Party in this new episode. When they head into the kitchen, they prepare some holiday treats, including festive fruit gelatin.

SATURDAY EVENING

Dr. Sandra Lee in "Dr. Pimple Popper"

Dr. Pimple Popper

тьс 4:00 р.т.

Dr. Lee treats a new group of patients with unusual skin problems in this rebroadcast. Yamileth has avoided pursuing her dreams due to an unsightly lump on her neck, while Jennifer has a bump on her forehead that's comparable to a unicorn horn.

Pit Bulls & Parolees

ANPL 9:00 p.m.

In this Halloween-themed episode, the Villabos celebrates by throwing a costume party for dogs in the hopes of raising money for the rescue. Also, an old friend wants to adopt a new family member, and Lizzy struggles to rescue a stray dog.

World's Biggest Ghost Hunt: Pennhurst Asylum

A&E 8:00 p.m.

Cameras document what happens when five paranormal investigators are locked inside the legendary Pennhurst Asylum in Pennsylvania in this premiere. They're tasked with getting to the bottom of recent reports of paranormal activity.

Schooled

WTVD (1) WPDE (1) 8:30 p.m.

Coach Mellor (Bryan Callen) is excited to celebrate Halloween with Julie (Valerie Azlynn) wearing a couple's costume in this new episode, but Principal Glascott's (Tim Meadows) rules on faculty-parent dating might get in the way. AJ Michalka also stars.

WEDNESDAY EVENING

AJ Michalka stars in "Schooled"

Forged in Fire

нізт 9:00 р.т.

In this special new Halloween edition, four weapon smiths are challenged to salvage steel from decaying blades to make a zombie-slaying weapon. Later, the competitors try to use drill bits to forge a canister Damascus blade.

American Horror Story: 1984

FX 10:00 p.m.

When the survivors help a stranded hitchhiker, a hidden chapter of Camp Redwood's history is revealed in this new episode. This season of the horror anthology series follows a group of counselors at a summer camp.
